

Pastoral Apprentice Job Opening
Open Door Fellowship, Denver, Colorado

Want to learn how to run a church service, practice your preaching skills, and develop your leadership? Successful candidates will preach bi-monthly or monthly, will orchestrate Sunday services, manage worship service transitions, oversee prayer times, and will work alongside with other pastors and lay leaders in our inner-city context.

You will learn the logistics required to run a worship experience smoothly in an urban context while developing skills in public speaking, volunteer management, and social trust building.

Ideal applicants will have started graduate level Biblical studies or completed college level Bible and preaching classes. Both female and male applicants should be comfortable speaking, reading, and giving simple directions before groups. Experience working in church settings a plus but not necessary. Ability to use technology equipment including computers, digital projectors, and sound equipment required (basic training provided).
